

Pre-Lecture Quiz, Chapter 5, Client and Family Teaching

Matching

1. Match the term in Column A with the definition in Column B

1. Client-centered care	A. Understanding medical information to the best of one's ability
2. Cultural competency	B. Autonomy to direct one's own care
3. Health literacy	C. Appreciation of the way those different than you do an activity

True/False

1. People older than 65 years make up more than 30% of those needing health care, yet represent a lower percentage of the population in the United States.
2. Eighty-three percent of adults are visual learners, whereas only 11% learn by listening.
3. The cognitive domain involves intellectual activities such as thought, recall, decision making, and drawing conclusions.
4. A drug prescribed for one family member should be shared with another family member, relative, or friend if similar symptoms are observed in them.

Fill in the Blank

1. The process of having the client show the nurse their ability to give an injection is called _____ method of client instruction.
2. The nurse-client relationship is built upon _____ and _____.
3. _____ is dependent upon a client's perception of the need to learn.
4. The _____ process can be used as a step-by-step process for client teaching.
5. If a dose of a drug is omitted or forgotten, the next dose must not be _____ unless advised to do so by the primary health care provider.